In the common areas, complementing modern magnesite flooring, you can see original and traditional Neapolitan hand-painted majolica tiles from the original Stingo factory, in operation since the 1700's. The uniqueness of the furnishings makes each of the six rooms different. Here, with traditional motifs such as the ancient 18th-century "riggiole" transformed into a headboard, there with the colors of handcrafted fabrics by Livio de Simone, the famed Neapolitan designer of the 1960's, elsewhere with family mementos, imaginatively presented in a modern mode.
